WELLINGTON BRANCH MEETING (Report from Kirk McDowall)

On Wednesday 19 August 2015, Michael Powles, the President of the NZCFS Wellington Branch welcomed attendees to the monthly meeting. The speaker for the night was Madeleine Slavick, who lived in Hong Kong for 24 years as a teacher, fundraiser, campaigner, photo-journalist and editor. She has published several books of photography, poetry, and non-fiction, and travelled to Mainland China to document various anti-poverty projects. Madeleine has had two recent exhibitions in Wellington and Auckland: RED (photographic images of China) and Hong Kong Song (a retrospective of 25 years of living in Hong Kong). Her presentation focused on both her personal artistic work and professional work with Oxfam.

Michael Powles and Madeleine Slavick

Madeleine first moved to Hong Kong in 1988 from Los Angeles when she was a 26 years old social worker, artist and photographer. She lived in a public housing estate with her Hong Kong born husband and in-laws in Northwest Hong Kong, in an area with few foreigners. Despite this, she felt very safe in the city and often walked alone at night, which was not as common in Los Angeles. During her time in Hong Kong, Madeleine expressed the society's 'can do, make do' attitude, and the ease of interacting with institutions and companies. This included the ease of organising poem nights for local and international poets, and events around the city.

While in Hong Kong, Madeliene tried out a number of different callings. This included teaching English at an international school, being a campaigner for Friends of the Earth, writing and working as a social worker. It was through these experiences and interactions with locals that she was able to learn more about the culture and customs of Hong Kong. In 1995, Madeliene began work at Oxfam Hong Kong as the inhouse editor, which combined two of her passions; social work and communications. She was involved in a number of campaigns, including ones on anti-landmines, setting minimum wage, climate change and fair trade. She also helped produced the Annual Review of Oxfam Hong Kong and fundraised for the organisation, where the majority of funds came from donations.

In addition to this work, she travelled to a number of different countries to write pieces on Oxfam projects, including in Vietnam, Ethiopia, India, Indonesia and Cambodia. She also visited Mainland China on a number of occasions. During this time, there was approximately 700 projects each year in Mainland China, focusing on agriculture, clean water, migrant workers and gender inequality. While visiting these projects in the rural areas, Madeliene took a number of photographs and her experiences inspired a number of poems at this time. One small scale project that Madeliene helped establish was called 'My Favourite Thing'. She talked to a number of people in Shimen, a tiny township near the crossroads of Yunnan, Sichuan and Guizhou provinces, and photographed them with their favourite thing – this included a young boy wanting a satchel for school and a coal miner stating time. An exhibition was held in Hong Kong to present their stories, and a company in Shanghai called L.O.V.E, expanded on this idea and conducted over 120,000 interviews across Mainland China, focusing on the people's favourite things.

During her presentation at the NZCFS meeting, Madeliene shared with us a number of poems and images from her time in Hong Kong. The photographs were taken around the city, including during the Mid-Autumn Festival and at Victoria Park during the 4 June Memorial. She also spoke on her experiences and talks with the people of Hong Kong. To learn more about Madeliene and to see her work, please visit her online blog at: <http://touchingwhatilove.blogspot.co.nz/>. Below is the opening of one of her poems, Sheung Wan, 3 a.m., from the book, Something Beautiful Might Happen (2010).

Rain falls like flowers at my feet, runs down the window of a parked car, effortlessly. I turn the corner, every road has the shadow of a season I once loved.

NZCFS-AIESEC EXCHANGE TO CHONGQING

This year, the NZCFS Wellington Branch and AIESEC, the world's largest student run organisation that sends university students on internships and exchanges around the world, called for applicants who wanted to go on a 6+ week AIESEC exchange to China. Funding to support the exchange for successful applicants was to be provided through the Simon Deng Li Fund. In July, Tess Pilkington, who is studying Health Science and Business at the Auckland University of Technology, was selected for an internship in Chongqing, Southwest China. During her time in the city, she worked for a 'Special Care' project, which focuses on children with autism, and included visiting local hospitals, and raising funds awareness in the city.

Tess at a fundraising event in Wanda Square

When Tess first arrived in Beijing, she attended a Global Community Development Seminar in Beijing, with 360 people from 51 countries and territories. The seminar focused on experiences from previous AIESEC exchanges and how to make a difference while volunteering in China. Following this, she went on a 25 hour train ride with a number of international interns to Chongqing city, where she spent the first week at the People's Hospital of Chongqing to learn about autism. She then spent the next week helping children at the autism centre to interact with one another and society, including taking the train and going shopping. During the third week, they set up an event at a local shopping mall to raise money for autistic children in China, followed by organising a concert that raised over 80,000 yuan.

Tess is having an amazing time in Chongqing, and her host family is very friendly and welcoming. Her host mother is a doctor, which is very beneficial as Tess is studying biomedicine. "I couldn't have gotten luckier staying with a Chinese family who love my three favourite things; food, health and music. It is funny, I tell them they need to come to New Zealand as they have a very Kiwi lifestyle, they don't take much seriously, are very down to earth and love beer and fishing. I know I have a second family now, and that I am always welcome in Chongqing".

Following her exchange in Chongqing, Tess will travel around China, including visiting Chengdu, Xi'an, Beijing, Hangzhou and Hong Kong. She will then travel around Southeast Asia before returning to New Zealand. For more information on Tess's exchange, please visit www.nzcfsyouth.org.

Several years later, Jin returned to Liubao and met Ermeizi again and they lived happily ever after.

NZCFS PROMINENT PERSONS DELEGATION, OCTOBER 11-17

The Chinese People's Association for Friendship with Foreign Countries have invited NZCFS to select a delegation of 8 to go to China in October. This delegation focus is medical and will include a visit to Anguo, where the hospital continues to commemorate Kathleen Hall, and where the current He Ming Qing scholarship is being implemented as a community health project (<http://nzchinasociety.org.nz/he-ming-qing-kathleen-hall-memorial-scholarship/>). It will also include activity that provides an introduction to Traditional Chinese Medicine and acupuncture, general health delivery in China, some hospital visits, and one or two lectures on Chinese approaches to health care.

We are pleased to announce that all three nominations put forward by Wellington branch have been accepted. Congratulations to Debbie Chin, Ann Chapman and Ben Gray. We wish them a successful tour and look forward to hearing their impressions on their return.

NZ CONTEMPORARY CHINA RESEARCH CENTRE INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCES

China-US Relations in Global Perspective

8-9 October 2015, Hunter Council Chamber, Kelburn Campus, VUW

An international conference with world-class scholars from China, the United States, New Zealand, Australia, and other countries to discuss issues related to the bilateral relationship. The conference will take place immediately after Chinese President Xi Jinping's first state visit to the United States in September 2015. It will also offer an opportunity to examine the bilateral relationship from third parties such as countries in the Asia-Pacific Region and the Oceania. For more information and registration please see <http://www.victoria.ac.nz/chinaresearchcentre/programmes-and-projects/wellington-conference/2015-china-us-relations-in-global-perspective>

China's Development and Its Implications

22 September 2015, 5.30 pm, Hunter Council Chamber, Level 2, Hunter Building, Kelburn Campus

Madame Fu Ying, Chairperson, Foreign Affairs Committee of the National People's Congress (NPC), will be giving a public lecture on China's Development and its implications, in conjunction with NZ Institute of International Affairs. China is a country of contradictions. On the one hand, China is the most populous country in the world with the second largest economy. On the other hand, China is also one of the developing countries in the world with the per capita GDP at a relatively low level. Currently, China is faced with daunting tasks of comprehensive reforms in all areas of economic, social, and political systems to pave the way for more sustainable development.
